

Back to Davis (to the tune of “Summertime”)

Lyrics: Brian Hurd, '92

*I'm going back, back to Davis, California
I'm going back to a place so far yet so dear
I'm going back, back to Davis, California
And I'm going to see if I remember her still*

When I get back gonna see if Putah Creek still flows
Gonna look for that fig tree outside 'AOB IV'
Stroll 'cross the quad in a tule fog
And listen for a 'lambda' that was quite silent before
Remember the places and remember the faces
Like Woodstocks, Steve's, Mansion Cellars, Mr. B's
The faculty's club flowed with Anchor Steam on Fridays
While 'Chet and his Bohemians' jazzed the room in style
We learned about GATT, GAMS, and programa 'Bracero'
Recall the voices of Martin, McCalla, and Quirino
Colin Carter a man of futures and options
With Howitt's PMP economic models were set free
Art Havenner taught us how to "Speakeasy"
Though optimal control was in Jim Wilen's hands
Alston and Chalfant made demand 'almost ideal'
While Karen, Roberta, and Bees aimed to make farming a breeze
Larson's markets seemed to always be missing
Green's estimators always turned out 'BLUE'
Sexton sought an absolute advantage
Whereas food for poor nations
 we learned from Taylor and Tu
